The Court of Appeals granted the attorneys for Caleb Powers 30 days in which to prepare and file a petition for a modification of the recent opinion reversing the Scott circuit court.

The drug stores of Fulton sell about $100 worth of cocaine every week. The cocaine habit has attacked the Fulton negro, and the rapidity with which it has spread has brought the authorities face to face with a difficult problem.

Gen. Cassius M. Clay fired on a deputy sheriff's posse that had gone to White Hall to serve a writ on him Friday. A pitched battle resulted and the Old Lion was wounded, while several of the officers had a narrow escape. Gen. Clay's friends fear his mind is unbalanced.

Frankfort, April 6.—The State Prison Commissioners awarded a contract to the Tennessee Shoe Manufacturing Company of Memphis for the labor of 150 convicts at the Eddyville Penitentiary at 45 cents a day. This is the highest price ever paid for convict labor in Kentucky.

Bowling Green, Ky., April 4.—A highly sensational episode occurred at Potter College, a wealthy and fashionable school for girls, in Bowling Green on March 30. Five young men, society swells of the town, made arrangements with four young ladies to take them to a duck supper and between 12 and 1 o'clock at night they drove a closed carriage to the entrance of the college campus, and by a previous arrangement with the young ladies whom they were to take out, by means of ladders enabled the five girls to leave their bedrooms and reach the college grounds. But as the fifth girl was descending the ladder the Rev. R. B. Cabell, President of the college, was apprised of the noise and going to that part of the building he saw what was going on and commanded the young men to leave and ordered the girls to return to their rooms. One of the young men fired a revolver and President Cabell returned the fire with a shotgun. The boys fled and the girls returned. Indictments have been found against the young men. They are charged with rioting in one indictment and with malicious shooting at without wounding in another. The five girls have been expelled from school.

PROTRACTED MEETING

Closed Sunday Night—Many Conversions the Result.

The series of meetings that have been in progress at the Cumberland Presbyterian church since March 11th were brought to a close Sunday evening. The last services were attended by large congregations. Sunday morning and also in the evening the large church was unable to accommodate all who came. Mrs. Woosley delivered two of the most powerful and impressive sermons on the last day of the meeting ever heard in this city. She is certainly a woman of wonderful ability. Rev. Price is to be congratulated upon securing the assistance of this lady. The meeting was one of the most successful revivals held in this city in many years. Great interest was manifested. There were about thirty conversions.

DANGEROUS ASSAULT.

Anthony Hughes Uses a Knife on Robert Gregory.

Saturday night Robert Gregory was standing in R. C. Haynes' grocery store when Anthony Hughes approached him and endeavored to get up an argument with Gregory, who told him he was drinking and he would talk to him when sober. At this Hughes became infuriated and cursed Gregory, calling him vile names. Gregory then struck Hughes in the face. Hughes drew a knife and according to the statement of Gregory, struck at Gregory's throat, but Gregory threw up his hand to protect his throat and the blade of the knife was buried in the hand, inflicting a very painful wound. The men were separated or the result would have been serious indeed.

A warrant was issued charging Hughes with cutting with intent to kill. He was arrested but was released under $250 bond. Tuesday he went before Judge Rochester and waived right of examining trial and the case will await the action of the grand jury.

SOLDIER LIFE.

Corporal Woody Writes an Interesting Letter from New York.

FT. COLUMBUS, N. Y. H., April 5, 1901.

EDITOR PRESS: In my last letter I anticipated the great pleasures which we would have here in summer time, but inserted the clause, "unless our Commander-in-chief says No, your next trip will be to the Philippines." Well it is only a few days ago he has said so, and in a few more days we will leave all behind us to depart for the Philippines.

How do we feel about it? many of your readers will ask: How does a man feel when for the first time he leaves his father's home to go out into the world? He is not afraid of the dangers ahead of him, but feels sad at leaving his home. The dangers that we are facing may be many, but it is not the thought of them but the thought of leaving the dear ones at home, a good many of us not being able to say farewell to them, which makes us feel sad. We are kept busy now in packing up the company goods, cleaning the equipments and gathering up our private things, that keeps us employed from early morning until sun-down.

Companies A, B, C and D of the Eleventh Infantry will leave Fort Columbus, N. Y. Harbor April 8, 1901, and embark at San Francisco on the transport Logan for Manila on the 15th of April. It will be a trip of about 40 days, with 2 stops, at Honolulu and Nagasaki, Japan. The transport we are to sail on, the Logan, is the old Manitoa, purchased by the government during the Spanish-American war, and one of the largest vessels in the American transport service. There will be on board about 1700 troops, and it will be a crowded boat.

What our life will be in the Philippines my readers can easily imagine from the reports of the warfare in the islands so frequently read in the daily papers—bushwhacking, marching through rice fields knee deep in mud, and occasionally encountering a band of insurgents.

At present a detachment of the troops of the island is giving an exhibition of drills and maneuvers at the Madison Square Garden in New York city. Whoever has been in New York city surely knows Madison Square Garden, which occupies a whole block, and where all the athletic exhibitions are always held. The annual military tournament is now in progress at that place and most of the organizations of the regular army in the vicinity of New York, and also the New York State militia, are represented. Thousands of visitors throng the Garden every day, and for a short time the boys in blue will be to the fore. But soon all this glory of war in peace will end in real war; play will begin with us in the tropics.

Being one of the boys who are not able to go home to say goodbye to the loved ones and to all the friends, I take this method to bid a kind farewell to all my friends, and promise to let them know as much as I shall be able to find out of the condition of these islands in the far Pacific.

Very respectfully,
Bert E. Woody,
Corporal Co. 11th Infantry.

Osteopathy.

From Our Special Correspondent.

FRANKLIN, KY., March 29th 1901.

ED. PRESS: The phenomenal success of the Southern School of Osteopathy in the past seems likely to be overshadowed by the growth of the present year. A great measure of success has been attained under great difficulties. The school opened but three short years ago and in these few months has attained a front rank among the osteopathic schools in equipment, faculty and character of the work done.

The members of the class graduating February first, enjoyed advantages which are far superior to those offered by old and larger institutions. This fact being known and generally recognized in resulting in letters of inquiry and expressions of purpose to enter the September class. The advantages given our first classes gives promise of the greater privileges and opportunities of the classes of the future.

The next class will come from all the professions and avocations. Many who occupy the most prominent places in the professional world—ministers, lawyers, teachers, doctors—will be found in the ranks of the students of osteopathy preparing for larger usefulness. Many who are not successful in the business world, merchants and traveling men, will leave the competition of the business world for the clear field of osteopathy.

It is no wonder that men and women study osteopathy. The greater wonder is that more do not. Osteopathy offers the only opening in professional life with the guarantee of large financial returns. The members of the February class will enjoy large incomes, the smallest probably running from $1500 to $5,000 a year. Other states are continually recognizing and protecting osteopathy and the demand for qualified practitioners will grow for years.

New patients are coming to the infirmary and if your readers are interested in osteopathy they certainly should investigate the merit and possibility of osteopathy and not be deterred by the opinion of those who doubt.

"Do you cure varicose veins?"
Several times the past few days we have received this inquiry and we are glad to answer that we do cure this and all other curable diseases.

"Are you successful in the treatment of female troubles?"
We are specialists in this class of diseases. We have a large force of highly educated and experienced physicians, both men and women, and are prepared to treat all curable diseases.

"What will treatment and board cost me?"
You will find the best of board at $10 to $15 per month. The least price will get first-class board.

Treatment costs $25 per month, so that you can take the treatment and get board at $35 to $40 per month.

"Will you send literature and answer letters without charge?"
Yes we will be glad to send literature and answer all inquiries and give all desired information, and examine and consult with you regarding your case without charge after you come to Franklin.

STIRRING NAVAL BATTLE

THE MEMPHIS REUNION HALL

Will Seat 27,000 Spectators—All About the Magnificent Street Decorations. The Reunion Button.

With a 100-foot span, which will be covered with a heavy quality of felt, similar to that which is placed on the roofs of the Binghamton car works plant here, and which has lasted for nearly ten years. The dancing floor, which will also be used as the convention hall, is 100 feet by 165 feet. This can be cleared of chairs in a short space of time, and will make one of the largest dancing floors in the South.

When you reach Memphis you will find the center of the city transformed into a veritable fairy land. The main street will be lined with lofty white columns, festooned with evergreens, flowers and hundreds of sparkling electric lights. As you pass to your hotel from the railroad depot you will walk beneath a beautiful arch, tapering into a slender peak, surmounted by a dazzling eagle. At each side of this will stand a pylon with an urn at its summit. In the urns will be placed a fire, so that all night long they will send leaping flames in solemn tribute to the memory of the fallen heroes. These columns will be further ornamented with bas reliefs of appropriate war groups and life-size statues of the most prominent leaders of the war. This will constitute what will be known as the "Court of Honor."

The Sons of Confederate Veterans will play an important part in the Reunion, for upon them will devolve the work of entertaining the sponsors and maids of honor. Also they will arrange the social functions of the Reunion, and will in addition to that take active part in the exercises. A proposition from the Chattanooga Chapter of the United Confederate Veterans, to change the charter and bylaws so as to admit the Sons of Veterans into the parent order, will be placed before the convention next May, and it is thought that this proposed change will be ratified and that the Sons will be admitted into the organization.

The Reunion Button.

What has proven to be the most popular and widespread feature of the Reunion is the Reunion button. Simple, yet attractive in design, and sold at a nominal price, this pretty little souvenir has already been sold far into the thousands, although it has only been on sale for a few days. The button is now being worn, it is safe to say, by every second person one meets in the city, and in hotels and cafes men are circulating the joke of refusing to talk or take a drink with anyone not wearing the little metal disk with the U. S. V. monogrammed in its center. In addition to the button there are hatspins and lacepins for the ladies. At several cigar stands traveling men have paid for cigars with one of the souvenirs. For a small article the button scheme has met with phenomenal success from the start, and its popularity is a reflection of the deep-seated and intense enthusiasm so apparent all over the city.

The Charm of Womanhood.

They had been sitting in silence for a long time, he gazing dreamily at her beautiful face, and she looking down at the figure in the rug for which her father had paid $427 at auction.

"Ah," he thought, "what is more beautiful than a woman in the first sweet, pure flush of maturity! God made man first, and it is well that he did so, else perhaps he had not succeeded in making woman so lovely. She is the sweet product of his ripe experience."

With man and all else in the sea and in the air and on earth to go by and improve upon it is not wonderful that the Creator was able to make woman the most excellent of all his creatures. How delicate is the chiseling of her nose; how fair her brow; how beautiful her soft, dimpled chin; how exquisite her mouth; how graceful are the lines of her form; how—

"Do you know," she softly said, interrupting his reverie, "that I was thinking how much that lamp over there reminds me of you?"

It was a large, finely decorated affair, with a fancy globe. He looked at it, wondering what she meant, and she continued:

You see it's going out.

He had his overcoat on a moment later and was saying goodnight.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Old Drummer.

One of the old drummers who do a good deal of driving about the country delights in telling about an old-time boniface, who runs a country hotel within a day's drive of Detroit.

"Sharp as a tack," declared the drummer. "Always as smooth as oil until some one tries to make a run on him, and then he can get back harder, faster and in fewer words than any man I ever heard talk."

"I saw a man come in there one day from the city. He is all right at home, but was feeling his oats that day and opened up on the old landlord by saying: 'Hello, grandad, get your frame into circulation. Don't set around here like a bump on a log. I want accommodation for man and beast.'

"Where's the man?" asked the old chap, in a flash.—Detroit Free Press.

Annual Easter Egg-Rolling Fete on the White House Grounds Witnessed by Thousands.

THE SCORPION HAS LEFT LA GUAYRA.

The Torpedo Boat Perry, Built by the Union Iron Works, Failed to Come Up to the Speed Stipulations—Another Effort to Get Oberlin M. Carter Out on Bond.

Washington, April 8.—The picture Easter egg-rolling fete of the children of Washington occurred in the White House grounds. The gathering of the multitude of youngsters of all ages, sizes and colors in the large terraced grounds back of the White House each year for their Easter frolic is the sight of Washington. Last Easter 25,000 persons witnessed the festival, and fully as many were present on the occasion. The Marine band, which usually furnishes music for the children upon these occasions, is away on a tour of the country, and in order not to deprive the children of this enlivening feature of their day, the Fourth artillery band, at Fort Monroe, was ordered here, and played throughout the day. Mrs. McKinley, whose love for children is well known, enjoys these frolics intensely, and she spent most of the time at her window or on the White House veranda watching the little folks sport.

EN ROUTE TO SAN JUAN.

The Gunboat Scorpion Has Left La Guayra, Venezuela.

The minister will arrive at San Juan Wednesday evening or Thursday morning, and if he meets a steamer there promptly, should be in New York the Thursday following, the 12th inst.

FAILED ON HER SPEED TEST.

The Torpedo Boat Perry Missed Out by Nearly a Knot.

Washington, April 8.—Secretary Long was informed that the torpedo boat Perry, built by the Union iron works of San Francisco, failed to meet contract speed requirements on her recent official trial. Under the contract the vessel was required to develop a speed of 29 knots an hour, but the best she could do on her trial run was 28.2 knots per hour. The action of the department has not yet been determined, but the vessel probably will be accepted subject to a slight deduction from the contract price.

STILL WORKING FOR CARTER.

Another Effort to Get Oberlin M. Carter Out on Bail.

Washington, April 8.—A motion was made in the United States supreme court by Hon. Jeremiah Wilson for the admission of ex-Capt. Oberlin M. Carter to bail, pending a hearing on his habeas corpus appeal. Solicitor-general Richards gave notice that he would resist the motion on behalf of the United States, and he was given five days in which to prepare a brief. Ex-Capt. Carter is now serving a five years' sentence in the Leavenworth penitentiary for defrauding the government.

Ten thousand soldiers have been detailed to maintain order during the French president's stay at Nice, where stringent orders have been issued to rigorously suppress the slightest hostile demonstration.

DOUBT AND EXPECTANCY.

Attitude of the State Department in Relation to the Status of Affairs in China.

MINISTER WU IS EVIDENTLY WORRIED.

The Apparent Contradictory Nature of Different Dispatches in Relation to Russia and China Has a Tendency to Keep the Diplomatic Officials Guessing.

Washington, April 8.—The Chinese minister was an early caller at the state department to seek information as to the report, based on advices to the state department, that there had been an interruption of the diplomatic intercourse between Russia and China. One of the messengers who has been on duty for many years in the senate wing of the great marble building today said:

"The way in which Senator Quay does the little—in fact, almost trivial—things, indicates the shrewdness and uniqueness of his personality.

"For instance, any man that comes to Washington to see Mr. Quay, and whom Mr. Quay wants to see—and there are hundreds of them—will go directly to his room, that of the committee on public buildings and grounds, and never ask a question of any kind. Not so with the friends of other senators, for while they may have been told how to reach their different rooms, they have, as a rule, to make inquiry for their location. I was amused the other day, when the callers on Mr. Quay were unusually numerous, to see how they went directly to his room, notwithstanding the circuitous route necessary to get to it. When I asked one of them how he knew where to find the room the he showed me a card. It told the story. It contained very minute directions as to how to reach the senator and just what to do."

When Senator Quay was last elected to the senate, in January of this year, after a bitter political struggle, the senate galleries were crowded with Pennsylvanians who intended to give him an enthusiastic reception upon his return to that body. One of the older senators, who is friendly to Quay, said to the writer: "This is going to be a bad day for Quay. When he enters the senate chamber his friends will break loose and disturb the decorum of the senate; and that will anger many senators."

Just as he concluded that sentence, Senator Quay appeared upon the floor of the senate, and the people in the galleries broke forth into oft-repeated storms of applause. It lacked seven minutes of 12 o'clock. The applause continued until noon, when the presiding officer took the gavel, struck the desk, and said: "The senate will be in order." Mr. Quay raised his hands and motioned the galleries for silence. Instantly the senate chamber was as still as a church.

The older senator turned to the narrator and said: "It is no wonder that Quay is a successful politician. He never overlooks little details. He knew beforehand that applause during the session of the senate would be unpopular with his colleagues on the floor, and hence he came in time to have it all over with before the senate came to order. That shows the masterful mind of the politician who knows how to succeed."

Telegraph Operator with a Delicate Ear—A Serious Rotunda Incident—Other Bright Bits of Capitol Gossip.

[Special Washington Letter.]

THE ways of statesmen and capitol employees are very interesting to observers, and particularly to veteran newspaper men. One of the messengers who has been on duty for many years in the senate wing of the great marble building today said:

That shows the masterful mind of the politician who knows how to succeed."

For almost 50 years "Ham" Young has been a conspicuous figure in this city. For fully 30 years he has been night manager of one of the great telegraph companies. His fine physique and splendid bearing have made him notable in the capitol. Although he is hairless, barring his snow-white mustache, he is still a handsome man. During the afternoons he has charge of the press gallery telegraph work in the house of representatives. Although he is conceded to be an able business man, no one would suppose that he could distinguish a man on a telegraph wire by a mere touch—so to speak—and that, too, when less than half a dozen words were sent. Mr. Young has charge of a large force of men, and when they desire to get off they send him a message to the capitol, or call him up on a wire and talk to him personally and make their desire known.

One of his men called for him on the wire the other day from up town and asked: "Can I get off to-night?"

"Yes, you're excused," responded Mr. Young.

The man walked down the avenue as far as Fourteenth street, when suddenly the fact dawned on him that he had neglected to state who he was, and he went back to set the matter straight.

Again calling up the capitol, he asked Mr. Young: "Say, how did you know who asked to get off?"

"Oh," came the response, "it's B—, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"I said you were excused."

"Well," said the man, as he left the office, "that beats all I ever heard of."

I gave no name and clicked but five words and here is a man who tells me who I am."

Old-time operators considered this remarkable, in view of the fact that only five words were sent. Things of this sort have been done when a longer conversation ensued, or the character of the man's sending was better gauged by a long talk.

The doorkeepers at the house say that Amos Cummings, of New York, is the most popular man in that body and that statesman Sulzer, of the same state, is the next man on the list.

When one of them was asked how he came to this conclusion he said: "Because so many people call for them every day. Their callers, as a rule, are people who are in distress and who want assistance. They know

The alleged shortage in the commissionary department in Manila aggregates $185,000; yet the commanding General cables home that it is a small affair. And so its coming to pass in these days of big combinations that the theft of less than a million is nothing but petty larceny.

Crittenden county took the lead in the nomination and election of a woman to the office of school superintendent. Hopkins, Christian and Caldwell followed, and now Ballard falls in line by nominating Miss Dee Sublett. The disposition to push a good thing along is growing.

It is feared by the friends of old General Cassius M. Clay that his mind is out of balance. That may be true, but the old gentleman's shotgun is not, and as that has been one of the chief attributes in the transaction of his business, he can still take good care of himself and property interests.

Russia wants to try the "benevolent assimilation" idea upon a large slice of China, and "grim visaged war shows his wrinkled front," yet Russia is doing it for China's good, and doubtless it will improve the slant eyed mongolian to wipe him off the earth, and as we are in the business elsewhere, it was the part of wisdom to withdraw from China.

The Democratic primary election in Caldwell county Saturday resulted in the nomination of the dem of a neighbor and a collaborator following ticket: Walter McChesney for Representative; M. J. a method unbecoming a people Groom, county judge; Robt Grassham county clerk; Shell R. Smith county attorney; Wiley Jones sheriff; Miss Nannie Catlett school superintendent; W. D. Dawson assessor; in the race for jailer it was a tie between W. O. Cantrell and W. W. Mitchell.

For two weeks Marion has been listening to the "woman preacher" and Marion ought to be the better because of it. The large congregations that gave earnest attention to every discourse of Mrs. Wooley showed that the people appreciate a sound, sensible, earnest exposition of the gospel, whether made by man or woman. Of course there are some who believe that "a woman is out of her place in the pulpit," but a very large majority of the people of this community who heard this woman will tell you that if she was out of her place she is the best misfit they ever saw.

A short time ago five young men of Bowling Green, belonging to wealthy and influential families, planned a nocturnal lark with five young ladies of Potter college. The President of the college appeared upon the scene with a shotgun as the girls were climbing down a ladder; some shooting occurred, and the affair got into the papers. The young ladies were expelled and the boys were indicted by the grand jury. Since then the president of the college went to Frankfort to secure a pardon for the boys from the governor. We do not care whether he succeeded or not; but now if he does not pardon the girls and take them into his school again, he is not just enough to the sex to be president of a female college. This way of punishing one factor and pardoning the other in an affair where both are innocent alike or both guilty alike, is neither equity or Christianity.

The trial of another one of the men accused of complicity in the murder of Gov. Goebel has commenced at Frankfort. It does seem that the time is now ripe for W. S. Taylor to return from Indiana and tell what he does or does not know about that tragedy. Heretofore the complaint has been that the courts were composed of partisans who would not give a fair trial; since the first month of this year the Court of Appeals has been composed of four Republicans and three Democrats, and if partisanship counts, as Mr. Taylor claims, in our high tribunals, the advantage is with him; and if it does not count, surely he should hasten to clean his skirts of any complicity in the gravest accusation that could be brought against a man. He owes it to his State, and, if he were of our political faith we would feel that he owed it to his party to make a speedy return and an honest effort to secure a vindication. Who would not rather be in prison in his native State a few months, with freedom and exoneration and the restoration of his good name just ahead, than to be a fugitive from his native heath, with all of the latitude the world could give, while such a charge hangs over his head?

And now the news reaches us that somebody has told the people of Salem that Marion has declared in her perverseness that Salem shall not realize the materialization of her ambition as foreseen. In the proposed railroad from the I. C. to the latter place. Now, we rise to expostulate with the purveyor of such a statement. Marion is not built that way; or to stick to our provincialism, and at the same time to be plain, Marion is not a hog. We want all the business and all of the prosperity in everything that goes to make a reputable community that can be honestly obtained by legitimate methods, energetically applied, to capture their general.

When Benedict Arnold aided a foreign government in its effort to overthrow American Independence he was universally condemned by the colonists. We shall have to forget those days before we can grow enthusiastic in praise of the Filipinos who joined in the plot.

More About the Stock Law.

EDITOR PRESS: As you want to hear from the farmers on the subject of the stock law, will give you my views.

I am for a stock law for these reasons: there is no pasture or grazing outside in this country worth mention, and stock that have to depend upon the woods for a living are very poor ones and not fit for market or anything else. Besides the trouble they give when running at large in carrying diseases, and worst of all, stock that are compelled to make their living by running at large are breamy and anything like an ordinary fence will not turn them; because, like a hungry man will fight for something to eat, and they often cause hard feeling and trouble in many of our neighborhoods. So you can count men and several of my neighbors in favor of a stock law.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Finishes the Work and Adjourns Tuesday—Several Suits Settled.

Tuesday afternoon circuit court adjourned after being in session two weeks and two days. The dockets were larger than usual this term and as a result court was in session longer than usual. The civil docket consumed all of last week and until Tuesday of this week.

Thursday the case of J. W. Guess of Tolu against the American Central Insurance Company occupied the attention of the court. The insurance company had insured Guess & Sons store at Tolu, which burned last year, for $2,000, but the company refused to pay the policy. The jury rendered a verdict for defendant. Tuesday the court set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial.

The suit of Mrs. Della Sparkman against Mrs. Jane Tyner and others, praying for $10,000 damages for libel attracted much attention. A large number of ladies of the Pinckneyville neighborhood were connected with the case as witnesses and defendants. Mrs. Sparkman alleged that Mrs. Jane Tyner and other ladies prepared and signed a letter to the guardian of a child living with her, stating that she was mistreating the little one, and begging him to take it from under her care. She denied the accusation and sued for libel. The jury could not agree on a verdict and the case was therefore continued. The defendants and plaintiff are all well known ladies of Pinckneyville.

In the case of W. B. Baird vs. A. H. Cardin a verdict was returned for the plaintiff.

The case of J. W. Givens vs. the Ohio Valley Produce Company resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff. The produce company had failed to fill a contract to furnish Mr. Givens ice; $160 was the amount of the judgment. This finished the civil docket, the petit jury was discharged, and Judge Nunn adjourned court.

TALK ABOUT COFFEE.

The World's First Supply Came from Arabia the Blest.

Tomorrows Brazil, Central America and Java Control the World's Markets—Japanese Plantations in Mexico.

THREE has been probably no greater factor in our civilization than the development of railways in the different parts of the world. To them we are indebted for the cheapness of many articles regarded by us as common necessities, by our forefathers as luxuries, while 200 years ago they were almost unknown to Europeans. Among them is the coffee found upon nearly every breakfast table. During Cromwell's time the first coffee house was established in London by a man who had brought some of the berries from Arabia, to the delight of his friends and patrons. Arabia may be said to be divided into three parts, one of stones, another of sand and deserts, while the third, Happy Arabia, "Arabia the Blest," is a land of gardens, olive trees and vineyards. Here is Yemen, from which all the civilized world at first obtained its coffee supply. Mocha, the chief town, stands on a sandy seashore, at the entrance to the Red sea, by the treacherous strait of Babel Mandeb. Prices for the berry were so very high that the different nations turned their attention to coffee raising in their various colonies. France first sent plants to the West Indies. Brazil now exports nearly a sufficient amount to supply the world. It is said that in that country from five to ten times as many pounds of corn or wheat might be raised to the acre as of coffee, if the laborers were adapted to cultivating those crops.

Coffee has grown wild in Ceylon from the earliest times. Natives mixed the leaves with their food and decorated their temples with the flowers hundreds of years before they found any use for the berries. In a natural state the plant grows tall, but when cultivated its top is cut back. The white flowers resemble those of the jessamine. The ripe berry is red, like a great cherry. Squirrels, rats and monkeys are dreaded enemies of the coffee planter. The berries are transported by rail from the interior to the seaports of the countries mentioned, thence shipped to the United States, while the product reaches us by the railroad direct from many parts of Mexico. That wonderland, lying so near us, which holds the relics of an advanced civilization, old when the nations of Europe were just emerging from barbarism, has proved very alluring to coffee planters. To visit this most grand and beautiful, rich and fertile land one should not confine himself to the railways or most frequently traveled routes. To fully appreciate Mexico one must journey, as the natives do, to those interior districts which constitute an earthly paradise. Here one may understand the dole far niente of the population, and it requires a supreme effort of the will to tear oneself away. When a resident in this land, one readily comprehends those strange marriages with native beauties which can never be understood in the outside world. This is the genuine land of "manana," a to-morrow which never arrives.

Although the cultivation of coffee was introduced among these people over a hundred years ago it has never been in high favor with them as a beverage, the Mexicans, as a rule, preferring chocolate, which is indigenous to the soil. A native, more than anything else, enjoys his chocolate, unless he desires something which will incite as well as cheer, when he is most apt to indulge in pulque, a liquor made from the cactus, which if imbibed to any great extent brutalizes the faculties. To its use is attributed the degraded condition of the peons of the country. From these people of mixed blood, more Indian than anything else, most of the laborers are drawn. Among them, while it is hard to procure a cup of the coffee which they are cultivating, one may easily obtain atole (an Aztec drink), chocolate, or te de agua (hot water poured on orange leaves).

Coffee growing was first introduced into Mexico from the West Indies by a Spaniard. His successful experiment induced other haciendados to follow his example, and now the industry is one of the most successful and profitable in the republic. In the extreme northern states of Chihuahua, Coahuila and Nuevo Leon, it does not do well because of the occasional frosts, but further south, whether in different altitudes, varying climates, temperate, hot and dry, low and damp, at Vera Cruz, Oaxaca and even to the Isthmus, it thrives. In the temperate land, the "cafeas arabica," resembling mocha, grows. It is an evergreen, shrubby and hardy, in height varying from five to seven feet. The old, moist, country variety resembles Java coffee. The trees are higher.

In order to go into the business of coffee raising a man must have a stock of patience and one of money sufficient to last him for five years at least, for that length of time must elapse before he receives any appreciable returns from his investment. Seeds are put in and the plants raised in small beds, often in the shade of trees. The seedlings may be transplanted when about eight months old, at regular distances (about six to ten feet apart) from each other, so that the full-grown trees will not interfere. They must then be kept free from weeds, shaded when they require it, from the too great heat of the sun, and topped, if necessary (many growers do not believe in the pruning processes). When about three or four years old the first blossoms appear among the vivid, shining leaves. These and the subsequent berries grow along the stem in clusters, sometimes singly. The fragrant blossoms first appear in the winter months, the green berries about July, and in October and November they are matured for picking. They must be taken from the tree, one at a time, by hand, and placed in a basket suspended around the neck of a peon woman or child. These baskets contain about ten or fifteen pounds, and the filling of one is worth about 12 cents in our money. The first year the tree yields from two to four ounces, twice that amount the second year and at the third is in full bearing, producing about one and a half pounds. A pound per tree is considered an average crop. In tropical states the yield often runs to five pounds per tree. After the picking the coffee is dried and hulled. Where shipping facilities are good many foreign-owned plantations are supplied with machinery for cleansing and hulling. But in regions remote from railroads and steamboat lines the freight by burros and pack-mules is so high that old-fashioned processes only are employed.

Petates, or straw mats, receive each day's gathering of berries, which are spread out in thin layers. Next day, in the full sunshine, they are removed to the patio, or drying ground, where they are again spread out, being constantly stirred and turned over until perfectly dry, after which peons thresh them out by treading on them with bare feet, separating the husks. The berries are then pounded in a stone mortar. Of course, this process bruises them somewhat and they are less regular in appearance than those prepared on the plantations where machinery is used. After being pounded they are raised above the head of the cleaner and allowed to drop on a mat, the chaff being fanned away. The coffee is now put up in sacks containing from 150 to 200 pounds. Large amounts are shipped all over the world from Vera Cruz. While waiting for their coffee crop, many planters cultivate tropical fruits, sugar cane and tobacco, for which there is an increasingly good market. Many of these products may be raised along with the coffee.

Except China, Mexico probably has the cheapest labor in the world, but the peons are lazy, with exaggerated ideas of their own importance, and the importation of Chinese labor bids fair to crowd them into the background, for although the peons compare favorably enough with the blacks of our southern states and the West Indies, their work marks a poor showing beside that of the industrious Chinaman, who never asks for a day off and works for small remuneration. A Mexican peon would rather half starve in the warm sunshine on a feast day than work. Our coffee imports from Mexico are increasing largely each year, with prices firm. EDWARD JULIAN.

ANTI-CANTEEN LAW FAILURE.

Soldiers of Army Post Canteens Have Had an Opposite Effect to That Desired.

Washington, April 8.—Information which has reached Washington from the army posts in different parts of the country indicates that the effect of the abolition of the army canteens has been the opposite to what was expected by those who insisted on the provision being inserted in the last army bill. Drunkenness and disorder have increased at the army posts. Officials at Washington and the members of the societies who urged the change and reside at the national capital have been given an opportunity of observing the operation of the law at the post near here. Neatly-worn paths lead to the groggeries and outside the government reservation, and one of them which had been closed down has again opened for business. The law prevents the opening of a new place until after six months' notice has been given. Several prospective "joint" owners have taken steps to establish new places. Conditions here are aggravated somewhat by the fact that the post is the scene of recruiting for a part of a new cavalry regiment organizing under the new bill, and the men are not thoroughly disciplined.

Luxuries formerly obtained through the fund created by the canteen are no longer obtained by the soldiers.

CONCERNING AGUINALDO.

He is Said to Be Purchasing Diamonds and Thinking Over His Manifesto.

Manila, April 8.—Gen. MacArthur says it is impossible to make a statement concerning Aguinaldo now.

It is possible that Aguinaldo will soon be removed from the Malacanang palace to a large house, with pleasant grounds, No. 56 General Salano street, a fashionable quarter of the city, beside the Pasig river, which is being renovated and prepared for occupancy.

Aguinaldo is purchasing diamonds and other jewelry. He continues to receive certain visitors, but newspaper correspondents are excluded.

It is said that the manifesto which Aguinaldo has been preparing has not yet been signed, and it is added that Aguinaldo is reluctant to comply with the conditions.

It appears that the majority of the Filipinos in Manila distrust Aguinaldo and dislike to see him accorded special favors. They say he ought to be severely punished.

ANOTHER MILLIONAIRE GONE.

Death of William E. Johnson, Millionaire Mine Owner, at St. Paul, Minn.

St. Paul, Minn., April 8.—W. E. Johnson, a millionaire miner of Florence, Col., died suddenly at St. Joseph's hospital, Sunday at midnight. Mr. Johnson had three smelters in operation in the vicinity of Denver, and was an influential citizen in his state. About two weeks ago he came to St. Paul and while a guest at the home of Dr. R. Schiffman, became sick.

Mrs. Johnson and a brother of the deceased came here from Colorado and were at the bedside of the dying man. Wednesday the patient became suddenly worse and he was removed to St. Joseph's hospital.

Mr. Johnson was 40 years old. His sister is Mrs. L. C. Wood, of Florence Col. The body will be sent home for burial.

MORE STUDENTS ARRESTED.

More Russian Students Arrested at Kharkoff and St. Petersburg for Riotous Conduct.

London, April 8.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Reuter Telegram Co. says the police at Kharkoff have arrested 21 students for rioting at the railroad station on the occasion of the departure of other students who were expelled for being connected with previous disturbances at Kharkoff.

A number of students were also arrested in St. Petersburg on leaving a theater where they had manifested particular approval of certain passages of a play which seemed to refer to existing political conditions in Russia.

Russia's Decision Not to Press the Manchurian Agreement is Pleasant News for Japan.

Yokohama, April 8.—The news of Russia's decision not to press the Manchurian agreement was received here with a feeling of relief. In anticipation of complications that might ensue had Russia reached another conclusion the government had resolved to postpone a number of important state undertakings, involving large expenditures.

Fatal Result of a Fight Over Fifteen Cents in a Negro Craps Game Near Des Moines, Ia.

Des Moines, Ia., April 8.—William Williams, aged 17, died from a wound received in a fight which took place over 15 cents in a craps game at Carbondale, a mining camp near here. Henry Hollins fired six shots into the crowd of craps-shooters, wounding Sam Johnson, Henry Brown, and William Williams. Hollins has not been apprehended. Johnson and Brown will recover. All are colored.

DEERING AT PARIS IN 1900.

The Famous Chicago Harvester Company Received More and Greater Honors Than Were Ever Before Awarded an American Exhibitor in the History of Expositions.

Americans may well feel proud of the interest which her citizens took in the Paris Exposition and the elaborate exhibits which were prepared with consummate skill and displayed in a manner not excelled by any other country. Those of Harvesting Machinery were most complete and interesting. The Deering Harvester Company, of Chicago, America's foremost manufacturer of that line of goods, was accorded the position of honor, having contributed much to the advancement of the art of harvesting. The other manufacturers were giving their best efforts to the advancement of agriculture.

Visitors to the Exposition were prompt to award the Deering exhibits supreme honors, and it only remained for official mandate to ratify the popular verdict, which was done in a manner as substantial as it was well-merited. Each one of the seven Deering exhibits secured the highest award in its class.

In addition to four high decorations, the Deering Harvester Company received twenty-five awards, or twenty-one in all, as follows: Decoration of Officer of the Legion of Honor, Decoration of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, Two Decorations of Officer of Merite Agricole, a Special Certificate of Honor, the Grand Prize, Six Gold Medals, Six Silver Medals and Eleven Bronze Medals, including Deering Collaborator Medals.

The Decoration of the Legion of Honor was instituted by Napoleon Bonaparte when First Consul in 1802, and is given to reward distinguished military or civil achievements. It is the highest distinction in the gift of the French Republic.

The Decoration of Merite Agricole is an honor of but slightly less importance, which is conferred upon those who have contributed greatly to the advancement of agriculture.

An Official Certificate of Honor was accorded the Deering Retrospective Exhibit, which showed the improvements in Harvesting machinery during the past century, and elicited the highest award of the French Government. Officials who had contributed to the Deering Harvester Company the preparation of this most important exhibit, by special request that exhibit was presented to the National Museum of Arts and Sciences at Paris, where it has become a permanent feature of that world-famed institution.

The Deering Twins Exhibit and Corn Harvester Exhibit, both of which received the highest awards, have by request of the French Government been presented to the National Agricultural College of France.

There was no field trial, either official or otherwise, in connection with the Paris Exposition, but the most important foreign contest the past season was held under the auspices of the Russian Expert Commission at the Governmental Farm of Tomsk, Siberia, August 14th to 18th. All the leading American and European machines participated and were subjected to the most difficult tests by the Government Agricultural Expert Commission. The Expert Commission awarded the Deering Harvester Company the Grand Silver Medal of the Minister of Agriculture and Domain, which was the highest award.

The Deering Harvester Works are the largest of their kind in the world, covering eighty-five acres and employing 9,000 people. They are equipped with modern automatic machines, many of which perform the labor of five to fifteen hands. This Company is also the largest manufacturer of Binder Twine in the world, having been first to produce single-strand binder twine, such as is in general use today, making over a third of the product of the entire world. The output of its factory in a single day would tie a band around the earth at the equator with several thousand miles to spare. The annual production would fill a train two feet wide, it would reach across the American Continent from ocean to ocean.

Deering machines are known as LIGHT DRAFT IDEALS, consisting of Binders, Mowers, Reapers, Corn Harvesters, Shredders and Rakes.

This company exhibited at the Paris Exposition an Autocultivator Mower, which attracted much attention, and exhibitions were given with one of these machines in the vicinity of Paris throughout the season.

Wise Occupations.

Half the world seems to have found unprofitable occupations. FARMER AND PLANTER SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Thoughts for the Coming Crop Year
—Do Not Undertake More than Can be Done Thoroughly.

"What a man soweth, that shall he also reap." This looks so plain it seems almost silly to repeat it. Yet a little observation shows that very few fully comprehend its force. Applied to the farmer, it means that he must plant the seed that he wishes to reap. But this is not all it means. If he plants more than he can cultivate, he can not reasonably expect to gather a full crop, because he will be compelled to neglect some part of it. Generally he gets to feeling pushed. He sees several things needing attention at the same time; is apt to do a little of each one, and thus poor work to all. The result will be that all the crops will suffer and none will make a full crop. Each will fail to make what it ought, and taken altogether will sum up a considerable loss. Over planting is a very common cause of failure in farming.

The farmer who could have worked 20 acres well and have made a good profit from it, plants 30, slurs over it all, runs up heavy expense accounts, gathers a short crop, comes out in debt, and joins the great class of grumbler.

We feel deeply on this point. We see it in object lessons before us so often. Better cut down the acres and run up the profits. There is a fixed cost attached to the cultivation of an acre, whether it yields much or little. The more acres you plant, the larger this item will be. If the crops fall below that yield, then there will be a loss upon that year's work. Very many farmers plant so much to the horse or mule, regardless of the capacity of the land or the horse. We urge all farmers to consider well how much they can prepare thoroughly, fertilize properly and work promptly. This may start you on the road to prosperity.

This anxiety to plant large areas leads thousands into making debts which they can never pay. They buy more fertilizers, then more provisions, then more wages, and so on and on. Once in debt the temptation grows to go deeper and deeper.

Another important point is what crop will it pay best to plant. If you do not understand the cultivation of any crop it is a great risk to plant that crop just because somebody had made a success with it. The man who knows nothing of tobacco culture will not be apt to make money growing tobacco. The farmer who knows nothing about clover will be apt to fall in growing clover. Plant the crops you understand.

Again you may know how to grow a certain crop, and not overplant and reap a fine yield, but may not have a good market near or convenient to ship to. Plant what you can sell.

Very few are so situated that they can depend on a single crop. Farms are adapted to many different plants, and seasons and markets are quite changeable. So a sensible plan will include several crops differing in character and earning capacity. As the family expenses are the first item on every farm, those things which the family consumes should always be grown at home, if at all practicable. If this is done the expense account will be cut down that it will be easy to have a surplus at the season's end.

Hence we sum up by saying, plant a variety for home consumption, and the crops you know best for marketing. Then plant only what you can make profitable by fertilizing highly and working thoroughly. Phosphate and potash will never fail to pay upon a crop well cultivated.

Now is the time to plan well and plant wisely.—James B. Hunnicutt, Atlanta, Ga.

AN IMPORTANT "IF."

The Farmer's Life Must Be a Strenuous One If He Would Reap Profit for His Labor.

Farming would be fun if crops did not have to be cultivated. Preparing the soil and keeping down weeds comprise most of the labor of growing cultivated crops and preparing the land, holds the same position with broadcast crops. It used to be thought that sowing oats on hard ground and plowing them in with a turning plow and a mule was killing two birds with one stone, and the thought made laziness comfortable to contemplate. It has been learned, however, that proper preparation and cultivation can be made to double the yield in many crops. But proper preparation and cultivation is practically impossible with the tools our grandfathers used.

How can soil be properly pulverized when the clouds must remain unbroken, or be broken one at a time over a large field. And how can weeds be kept down by plowing them up after they are a foot high and have done their damage? But that's the way we used to do the thing, or attempt it, at least, and the custom has not yet disappeared. But now we have tools that do the work perfectly and rapidly.

First, we plow the land as deeply as necessary, then we crush the clods on a strip seven or eight feet wide each trip across the field. Then by treating ten to fourteen acres a day, we thoroughly fine the surface and confine the soil moisture, and with the same implement that fines the surface we kill the weeds without ever letting one get an inch high. How can farmers compete with those improved processes with the old-fashioned tools? As well haul cotton to Houston on an ox wagon, or tour the state on horseback, or do any other foolish thing in a foolish way.

The old rule of "an acre a day" does not apply to the present day, or at least we should be able to go over the field and be ready to go over it again before the weed seeds covered by the first day's labor have had time to come up. Weeders, rollers, harras, improved plows, planters and cultivators are necessary to success on the farm now-a-days.

Cultivates Before Planting.
Jack Duke, of Grimes county, Tex., was generally considered the best farmer in the county, always making a better crop, and apparently with less labor, than any of his neighbors. He also had some quaint but forcible ways of expressing his views. We called at his house one frosty December day, and asked: "Mr. Duke, what are you running all those plows for? You had all your ground broken two weeks ago?" "Cultivating my corn" was the reply. "Cultivating corn? Why, you have no corn to cultivate." "Oh, you fellows don't understand me. I do most of my cultivating before I plant, and have corn to sell when you want to buy." On another occasion another neighbor was at Duke's farm and expostulated in a good-natured manner with him about not planting corn. "We are getting anxious about you, Duke," said the neighbor. "We have all planted and got corn up, and we want to know when you are going to plant?" "Well, I'm going to plant just when I get ready," said Duke, "and you would make better crops than you do if you wouldn't plant till you get ready." The neighbor "saw the point," but whether he profited by it or not is another question, and we will not discuss it. But it is a fact the Duke sold corn that fall to that neighbor.—Farm and Ranch.

PRESERVE YOUR HORSES.

Many farm horses are killed each year by thoughtless owners. They would not take their lives as butchers would, nor do they purposely take their lives by intentional cruelty. By careless inattention the work is done, and many men are guilty of the charge of killing off good horses if the matter could be definitely traced. Poor treatment when disease attacks the vital parts of a horse is a source of much fatality among horses. Lack of judgment under circumstances relating to the care of horses when they are out of condition is another. The lack of proper knowledge of the effect of different foods for horses under peculiar conditions may be added to the list. A great many causes might be given, but it is unnecessary to repeat them here. The horse owner who will give the subject any thought can figure out more ways than one in which the lives of his faithful animals may be shortened or lengthened. There are very few horses worn out. The most of them die from some cause or other, and these causes are what horsemen want to look after if they want their horse to live to a green old age. It is easier to preserve horses than to procure them. Barring accidents, a sound horse should be as good at twenty as at any other age, yet we find but few that are old that are able to do a full day's work without great fatigue. WATER SPECTACLE.

BEAUTIFUL FOUNTAIN EFFECTS FOR THE PAN-AMERICAN.

UNEXAMPLED SIGHTS TO BE PROVIDED FOR VISITORS TO THE EXPOSITION. WILL USE 35,000 GALLONS OF WATER PER MINUTE FOR THIS FEATURE.

When visitors to the Pan-American Exposition view the fountain displays, they will be inclined to wonder where all the water comes from, so plentiful will be the supply. It will be with these fountain displays the same as it will be with the electrical exhibit. There will be a point, place, at which the display will increase in beauty and extent until the climax is attained and about the Electric Tower and the basin thereof. So extensive will this be that all will recognize the beauty of the display and look in wondering admiration upon the spectacle, which is destined to be one of the most remarkable features of the Exposition.

The pumping plant that will supply the water effects will be located in the Court of the Machinery and Transportation building. It will consist of 12 pumps having a total capacity of 35,000 gallons of water per minute.

The engines are all to be belted to their respective pump units, and they will be required to be in service from 10 o'clock in the morning until 11:15 o'clock at night, a period of 134 hours.

Estimating their capacity at 35,000 gallons of water each minute, it is evident that each day during the time they are to be in service they could pump the enormous amount of 27,825,000 gallons of water. This water will be used to serve the fountain displays at the Electric Tower and basin and also the Court of Fountains, including the Fountain of Abundance. The water will be taken from an intake located at the north end of the Court of Fountains basin through a 48 inch suction pipe. It will be delivered by the pumps through 16 inch and 20 inch pipes at a pressure of 110 pounds per square inch to the fountain orifices. From these orifices the water will stream in all shapes from the finest spray jet to the solid stream inches thick that will rise high in the air.

At the Fountain of Abundance the sight will be all the name implies. There will be an abundance of water, and it will be in motion. Beyond the Fountain of Abundance will be the Court of Fountains, and this basin will be filled with large jets of water thrown vertically. They will be known as pillar jets. In this basin will also be located beautiful groups of water figures, all formed in the manner in which the water is projected. The water figures will resemble sheaves of wheat, lilies, etc., and they will average 12 feet high. On a line through the center of the main Court of Fountains there will be all of 20 of each of these figures of surpassing beauty.

Beyond this still, at the north end of the Court of Fountains, will be the Genius of Water. Here in a significant group of statuary the sculptor will portray his artistic conception of what the figure is designed to represent. Over in front of the statue the water will ebulliate, carrying out in most perfect way the sculptor's idea.

In front of the Electric Tower, in the basin and in the niche of the Tower the climax of spectacular water effects will come with a gorgeousness that will exceed any display of the kind the world has seen. On each side of the center of the structure will be located two groups of water jets, with 26 large pillar jets, throwing water columns to a height of 50 feet. On the arc of a circle, whose center is the niche, will be located some 42 large jets, throwing water in parabola curve toward the cascades in front of the niche. These jets will be so arranged as to make a very rugged stream. This stream will not be solid, neither will it be so broken as in the spray jets. Then out from the niche itself there will come a flood of water of 13,000 gallons per minute, which, by means of a deflector, will take the form of an immense water screen or veil, the beauty of which will linger in the memory.

ORRIN E. DUNLAP.

CYLING ROUTES.

WILL ALL LEAD TO BUFFALO NEXT SUMMER.

For the accommodation of the large number of cyclists who contemplate traveling afield to Buffalo and the Pan-American Exposition and Niagara Falls next summer a series of "trunk line" cycling routes is being compiled. They will probably be as follows:

1. New York and Albany to Buffalo (via the Hudson River, the valley of the Mohawk and the cycle paths of Central and Western New York).

2. New York to Buffalo (via the Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Elmira, Corning and the cycle paths of the Southern tier of counties).

3. Boston and New England points to Buffalo (connecting with Route No. 1 at Albany).

4. Boston and New England points to Buffalo (via Providence, New London, steamboat to Greenport, Long Island; cycle paths of Suffolk County to Brooklyn, connecting with Route No. 1 or 2 at New York).

5. Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia to Buffalo (connecting with Route No. 2 at the Delaware Water Gap or Scranton).

6. St. Louis and Chicago to Buffalo (via Toledo, Cleveland and Erie). The road from Erie to Buffalo along the south shore of Lake Erie, through the Grape belt, has been called the finest 100 miles straightaway in America.

7. Chicago and Milwaukee to Buffalo (via steamboat across Lake Michigan to Grand Haven, Detroit, through Canada, Niagara Falls).

8. Cincinnati to Buffalo (connecting with Route No. 6 at Cleveland).
